DAYSBORO.

Miss Rosa Coldiron is teaching a good school with good attendance. Miss Rosa is an accepted favorite in this district.

Quincy Jagers, of Illinois, visited his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jane Nickell, last week, and will make a tour among other relatives and friends in this section.

Last week Miles Fallon, of this place, bought a cane mill from Buck Higgins. When he arrived home he found that he had lost it. This is very unfortunate as Miles wanted to use it.

Lige Blankenship, better known as the "The Drake," is the proud possessor of a watch which suits him, as he claims that it was built in a quick train early dinner factory, and just wouldn't take a pretty for it.

POET.

The Bed-Rock of Success

lies in a keen, clear brain, backed by indomitable will and resistless energy. Such power comes from the splendid health that Dr. King's New Life Pills impart. They vitalize every organ and build up brain and body. J. A. Harmon, Lize, more, W. Va., writes: "They are the best pills I ever used." 25c at all dealers.

CILLMORE.

J. C. Lindon went to Antioch Sunday on business.

Mrs. J. M. Ely made a business trip to Neola Saturday.

W. L. Crisp, of Lee City, was in this section electioneering.

Arthur Little, of Insko, was visiting in this section Sunday.

Aunt Lottie Little, of Insko, is visiting relatives and friends here this week.

Cartey and Carl Ely and McKinley Gose attended church on Grassy Sunday.

Mrs. Fannie Brooks, of Stamper Branch, was visiting Henry Dupp and wife Sunday.

Several attended church at this place Sunday and heard some good preaching by Rev. P. C. Gullett.

R. M. Haddix and Elizabeth Haddix sold their interest in the J. H. Vest farm to Scott Nickell for the sum of $200, and bought W. L. Bailey's farm, on Graham creek, for the sum of $500.50, paying $400 down.

Oct. 4.

DAISY.

The pleasant purgative effect experienced by all who use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and the healthy condition of the body and mind which they create, makes one feel joyful. Sold by all dealers.

COSNEYVILLE.

Mrs. Day preached at the home of James Brown last Saturday and Sunday night.

Our pastor, Mr. Agar, and wife are moving to Maytown this week. We regret to see them leave.

Rollie Tutt and Nick Center and Misses Grace and Ruth Tutt and Bertha Fuks took dinner at the home of Suda Wilson Sunday.

Messdames J. J. and T. K. Tutt, Misses Ruth and Grace Tutt, Bertha Fuks and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fuks attended a funeral at Sandfield Sunday.

A bean hulling was given at the home of Miss Ruth Tutt Saturday night. Among those present were Misses Grace and Lillie Tutt and Myrtle and Zella Fuks, Nick Center, Rollie Tutt, Younger Bowman, Wallace Crain, James Powell, J. F. Brown and Herbert Legg. All had an enjoyable time.

CINDERELLA.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has become famous for its cures of coughs, colds, croup and influenza. Try it when in need. It contains no harmful substance and always gives prompt relief. Sold by all dealers.

TRENT.

Mrs. Rebecca Edwards is on the sick list at this writing.

Wm. Blankenship, of Consolation, passed through this section Tuesday.

Oren Campbell, of Hazel Green, passed through here en route to Stillwater.

J. D. Edwards and daughter, Stella, attended church at Sandfield Sunday.

Mrs. Mida Stamper, of Stamper Branch, passed through here on her way to Hazel Green Saturday.

David Pennington moved from the J. T. Day farm at this place to the farm of John Pieratt, on Red river.

Misses Gracie, Golden and Beulah Trimble, of Lacy creek, were guests of Walter Maloney and family Sunday.

Miss Maggie Raney, accompanied by her brother, Elvin, of Hurst fork of Stillwater, was a pleasant guest of Misses Nannie and Dorcas Barker Sunday.

John Ratliffe, of near Caney, had the misfortune of getting one of his horse's shoulders broken as he was on his way to court between J. H. Barker's and John Campbell's Sunday.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents, Jim Brewer and wife, of this place, Wednesday night, September 29, Miss Lillie Brewer and John T. O'Hair. The bride is known as one of Laurel's most charming girls and the groom is one among the best boys in the community, sober, industrious and honest. We wish them all the joys of married life and hope their pathway may be along the route of prosperity.

PANSY-BUD.

Frightful Fate Averted.

"I would have been a cripple for life, from a terrible cut on my knee cap," writes Frank Disberry, Kelliher, Minn., "without Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which soon cured me." Infallible for wounds, cuts and bruises, it soon cures burns, scalds, old sores, boils, skin eruptions. World's best for piles. 25c at all dealers.

BURKHART.

Hiram and John D. Rudd, two prominent farmers of Belknap, were here the other day on business.

A. B. Little, a cattle dealer of Insko, bought a nice milch cow from James C. Bailey, of our section, for $27.50.

J. C. Bailey made a business trip to Stevenson last week and in the meantime bought a milch cow from Will Day for $27.50.

Leander Elam attended the funeral meeting at the Old Grassy church Sunday, and visited his son, Sam Henry Elam, at Consolation.

George Crase, Sr., and nieces, Misses Clementine and Rowena, of this place, spent a very pleasant visit with relatives and friends in Breathitt county last Saturday and Sunday.

Boone Bache visited his daughter, Miss Florida, who is attending school at Hazel Green Academy, Sunday. Mr. Bache is thinking of moving to Hazel Green very soon to educate all his children at the academy. We will be sorry to see him leave our community, but we cannot afford to object to young people receiving an education.

Oct. 4.

NAT.

It is in time of sudden mishap or accident that Chamberlain's Liniment can be relied upon to take the place of the family doctor, who cannot always be found at the moment. Then it is that Chamberlain's Liniment is never found wanting. In cases of sprains, cuts, wounds and bruises Chamberlain's Liniment takes out the soreness and drives away the pain. Sold by all dealers.

CANNEL CITY.

Will Urfer had a sale Saturday. It consisted chiefly of live stock, which brought fair prices.

Fairie Templin, music teacher in the public school, arrived Friday and began her duties today.

Sam Carter, of West Liberty, was a pleasant guest of some of our young folks last Saturday and Sunday.

J. R. Kendall, Gardener Cottle, J. H. Sebastian and Judge Ferguson, all of West Liberty, were in our town Saturday.

Mrs. Charley Byrd and little daughter, Gladys, are visiting Mrs. Byrd's parents, Q. C. Daniel and wife, at Hazel Green.

Ed Hogg, of Booneville, the estimable Democratic candidate for senator in this district, was among us two days last week. Mr. Hogg and his friends are confident of success.

Mrs. Whittaker, wife of Dr. Whittaker, left Sunday for an extended visit to Lexington, Frankfort and other points. Before returning she will call on her two nieces, Esther and Frances Lykins, who are attending school at Midway.

A nutting party consisting of Sue Long, Mollie Kilgore, Fairie Templin, Edna Lykins, Hugh Minor, Ed Faulkner, Guy Leslie, Estill Clark and Hubert Gambill, robbed many trees of the ripe, brown fruit in the vicinity of Bigstaff Sunday afternoon.

Possibly one of the most successful teachers' associations ever held in Morgan county was convened at this place Saturday. Seventeen out of the twenty-one teachers in this Educational District were present. The session in the forenoon was taken up with timely discussions by the teachers. They then enjoyed dinner, prepared especially for them at the homes of the citizens. Forty minutes of the afternoon session was turned over to the literary societies of the public school, during which time all were entertained with an exquisite program of recitations and music. The association was attended not only by teachers, but by the citizens of the town, thus showing their attitude toward education. Superintendent Ward, in his closing remarks, said: "The teachers of this Educational Division, as well as the citizens of Cannel City, should be congratulated for such a splendid showing in the cause of education."

Oct. 4.

ETHEL.

Hoarseness in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. Sold by all dealers.

MURPHY FORK.

Born, to the wife of Cleve Mannin, Friday, a boy, Dr. Andy Nickell attending.

Mrs. Alice Oldfield, of Rardin, Ill., is visiting her parents, James Little and wife, at Mize.

The creek was deserted Sunday. Beauty and fashion had assembled at the services held at the Old Grassy church.

Prof. Kelly Wheeler, of Elamville Academy, left Friday for a visit with home folks at West Liberty, returning Sunday.

Frank Lawson, of Ezel, father of Long Dave, of this creek, died Sunday of consumption, and was buried Monday in the Ezel graveyard.

Misses Mary, Maud and Ella Miller, of Stillwater, accompanied by Mort and Roscoe Wilson and Mort Halsey, were visiting on the creek Saturday and took in the big preaching Sunday at the Old Grassy church.

Over 1,000 people attended the big meeting at Old Grassy Sunday. Revs. Harlan Murphy, Bill Yeoum and Dent Byrd preached beautiful and impressive sermons on the life and death of Mrs. Elizabeth Couch, wife of Jeff Couch, who died about a year ago.

Oct. 4.

TULIP.

Your cough annoys you. Keep on hacking and tearing the delicate membranes of your throat if you want to be annoyed. But if you want relief, want to be cured, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by all dealers.

READ NEWSPAPERS

You Must, Say Western Girls, if You Would be Intelligent.

HOME PAPER IS THE BEST.

[Western Publisher.]

Out in a small western town there are a lot of pretty and clever girls banded together under the name of the Marriageable Ladies' league who are perfectly aware, says Dorothy Dix in the New York Evening Journal, that it takes a great many desirable qualifications to make a man an agreeable husband and the chief of these is intelligence. Hence, at the meeting of the league last week, the following resolution was passed by a unanimous vote:

Be it resolved, That we, the members of the Marriageable Ladies' league, do hereby agree not to marry any man who is not a patron of his home newspaper, for it is strong evidence of his want of intelligence, and that he will be too stingy to provide for a family, or educate his children, or support institutions of learning in the community.

These girls don't beat about the bush. They go right at it and face the fact that the man who is dull and ignorant and unprogressive in his youth is not going to be a Solomon in middle life, or a sage in his old age.

They realize that the man who does not read the newspapers is the dolt who gets taken in by confidence men, and who invests the family savings in gold bricks, and comes whining home to be comforted for his stupidity by his wife. He is a man to be avoided by every girl who does not feel that she has a sacred call to run an asylum for incurable imbeciles, and this is the kind of man that the Marriageable Ladies' league resolves to sidestep.

The idea is good enough to pass along. Any girl may take it as a safe tip that the man who is too close-fisted to take a newspaper and too utterly stupid to read one, is the kind of a man who is going to bore her to death.

But the main point is that both husband and wife are interested in the things in the papers. They can talk about the same murder trials, and divorces, and financial scandals, and politics that are interesting the public at the moment, and of such goseamer fibers are the unbreakable chains of love and sympathy forged.

The real test of perfect amity and understanding between a married couple is when they split the newspaper between them. The Dove of Peace has taken up his permanent roosting place in their household.

Money Comes In Bunches

To A. A. Chisholm, of Treadwell, N. Y., now. His reason is well worth reading: "For a long time I suffered from indigestion, torpid liver, constipation, nervousness, and general debility," he writes. "I couldn't sleep, had no appetite, nor ambition, grew weaker every day in spite of all medical treatment. Then used Electric Bitters. Twelve bottles restored all my old-time health and vigor. Now I can attend to business every day. It's a wonderful medicine." Infallible for stomach, liver, kidneys, blood and nerves. 50c at all dealers.

Oldest Kentucky Church.

The celebration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the Pisgah church in Woodford county, which is the oldest church building now standing in that section of the state, if not west of the Alleghany Mountains, is now being held.

Meetings have been held annually at the Pisgah church on October 7 for over 100 years, and from it has emanated much of the civilization of Kentucky. The start of the educational movements in Kentucky more than 100 years ago was from this church.

The start of the old Transylvania University was from this church, and many of the noted men of Kentucky who figured in its early history were educated there, among them the brilliant Thomas Marshall, the Breckinridges and others received their early training at this church in which the school was conducted.

The Southern School Journal has been criticised in one or two sections of the state because of its apparent failure to recognize the school happenings of that section in the School News. The criticism is just. There are several sections of the state unfairly represented in the news columns. For this there are two reasons:

First, the failure of the county newspaper to place the Southern School Journal on its exchange list. We are sending the Southern School Journal each month to about seventy-five county newspapers which we never see. We depend on these county papers for the school news, finding this a more satisfactory plan than depending upon personal correspondence, when we can secure the county papers.

Second, the lack of harmony and co-operation existing between teachers and their local papers. One county newspaper in August gave the greater part of an entire issue to the publication of the minutes of the teachers' institute, and in a footnote, asked for the support of the teachers, stating that while its space had been freely given, there seemed a total failure on the part of the teachers to appreciate the favors extended. There are others papers, probably, in the same position, but rather more long-suffering or else more optimistic.

The county newspaper is a friend to the teacher—a friend from whom we often borrow, and whom we seldom fully repay. The position we secure, the successful entertainment of our school has given, the purchase of a library or bookcase or organ for our school, the favorable comments on our work—these are given space, gratis. We may borrow our neighbor's paper in order to read such comments, and may even ask our neighbor to give us the paper when he has finished reading it, in order that we may send it to a friend who, also, is not a subscriber. When we see the editor, we may remember that it was he who made such pleasant publicity possible, and we deluge him with thanks, while the poor man stands smiling patiently, thinking of the coal bill which the one dollar our subscription would bring might help him to pay; and the cake of Lava soap he needs to rid his hands of printer's ink, which might be purchased by the five cents we should pay for the extra paper to send to a friend.

Besides, the county newspaper is well worth the one dollar asked for it, aside from the spirit of co-operation which should be manifested by the enrollment of every teacher on its mailing list. Suppose it does not contain news every week—it is worth the price of the paper to know that nothing of moment has happened in your county.

Let us stand by the editor of the county paper. He works harder, receives less, and accomplishes more than the majority of his subscribers dream of.—Southern School Journal.

It's a Top Notch Deer.

Great deeds compel regard. The world crowns it doers. That's why the American people have crowned Dr. King's New Discovery the king of throat and lung remedies. Every atom is a health force. It kills germs, and cold and la grippe vanish. It heals cough-racked membranes and coughing stops. Sore, inflamed bronchial tubes and lungs are cured and hemorrhages cease. Dr. Geo. More, Black Jack, N. C., writes, "it cured me of lung trouble, pronounced hopeless by all doctors." 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all dealers.

Parents oftentimes wonder who or what has ruined their boys. They have been in school every day but the teacher either does not teach them any morality or else his teaching is a failure. The truth is, the boys are on the streets from the time school closes until late at night. The street corner is the best place in the world for teaching vice, profligacy and crime; nearly all the bad language and idle, vicious habits of boys are taught on the streets at late hours of the night. Teachers may be able to accomplish a little in counteracting vile influences, but much of their labor is in vain until parents co-operate with them in keeping their boys off the streets.

Since the discovery of the North Pole and the controversy about the same cold weather and magnetic disturbances have occurred throughout the northern part of the earth. A mysterious phenomena, caused presumably by the Aurora Borealis, recently occurred and caused more or less trouble to all electrical machinery. It was a magnetic disturbance of wide extent and effected the telegraphs and telephones and even the Atlantic cables. Telegraph instruments were put out of use all over the country for more than an hour, and telephone wires running for any distance were rendered so noisy that it was impossible to use them. Science has failed to determine the cause and origin of the magnetic disturbance which accompanies the Aurora Borealis, and the only way that it makes itself known is the effect it has on the various instruments operated by electricity. The severity of the storm can only be determined by the effect produced on the electrical instruments.

The editor and his wife disagree with each other very materially. She sets things to right and he writes things to set. She reads what others write and he writes what others read. She keeps the devil out of the house as much as possible and he retains him and could not go to press without him. He knows more than he writes and she writes more than she knows.

In preaching his farewell sermon to a congregation at North Lawrence (Kas.) Christian church Rev. D. H. Carrick, who had just accepted a position as conductor on the Lawrence street railway, said: "I don't believe a minister can live an honest life now. If he preaches the truth he will be condemning the lives of most of his congregation and offending them. He passes over this and that and lives a lie every day of his life in order not to offend the influential members of his congregation. Thank God, I am earning an honest living now."

The coming preacher is going to preach salvation and humanity instead of prohibition and business. He will diagnose the ailments of the soul instead of measuring the purses of his congregation. He will prescribe potatoes for the starving instead of prayers for the rich.

The case of Beach Hargis, for the killing of his father, James Hargis, was argued before the Court of Appeals last week and was submitted to the decision of the court Friday. The Commonwealth was represented by Attorney General Breathitt and Senator W. O. Bradley spoke in behalf of Beach Hargis. It is rumored that the case will not be decided for two weeks.

Some ancient writer has truthfully said: "Don't grow old; associate with young folks; have a good time every day; laugh and don't worry; don't think you are growing old, and you will be surprised how long you keep young."

Scarcely has the football season opened and accidents are already being reported. Duke Trimble, an Indiana University football guard, was injured in a game last week and is dangerously ill from blood poisoning as a result.

In commenting upon the death of Governor Johnson, of Minnesota, the Toledo Blade, Republican, says: "The country could ill afford to lose such a man as John Johnson."

Defects in Our Educational System.

A report was recently made by William B. Bailey, assistant professor of political economy at Yale University, on the spelling ability of students in that institution. Two hundred and fifty students submitted to Professor Bailey essays on various subjects, and in only 25 of these productions were there no misspelled words; the list of misspelled numbered 443; the average number of misspelled words per student was five; the average number of misspelling was seven, and the three words most generally misspelled were "separate," "relieve" and "receive."

The trouble with our present common school management is that children are required to have too many studies. This craze for "wholesale" education appears to be general. It is not confined to any state or locality. The person that can spell correctly, write plainly, read intelligently and has a knowledge of arithmetic is equipped for the duties that fall to the lot of the great majority. We would not discourage higher education, but first of all the essential things should be mastered, to at least a reasonable degree.

Peary Paid By Uncle Sam.

It occurs to some inquisitive people that they might properly inquire if Commander Peary was in the pay and service of the United States Government while on his trip to the pole. If so, is he entitled to all the emoluments from the publication of his story, his books, lectures, etc., based on his journeys? It is said that Commander Peary, while in the pay of the Government, has for the last dozen years done little else than exploit himself as a polar explorer, and that on his recent trip the Government had assigned him to report tidal observations in the arctic regions. No one wishes to detract from any of the credit that belongs to Peary, and we all hope that he has discovered the pole, either as first or second finder; yet we cannot escape the conclusion that a good deal of the courage we attribute to polar discoverers has behind it a decided hankering after what the Good Book calls "filthy lucre."—Leslie's Weekly.

Unwritable English.

"Did you know that there is at least one sentence in English that can be spoken, but that it is impossible to write?" asked a Cambridge University professor. "Yes, it's correct English I suppose, and then again it isn't. Here is the sentence, although I vow I don't know how you are going to write it: 'There are three twos in the English language.' You see, if you spell two, t-w-o, the sentence is incorrect, as it is if you spell it either 't-o-o' or 't-o.' Catch the point? Really, it is incorrect to say it, although it should certainly be possible to express the thought. This thing has set me going, and it simply goes to show what a tangle the English language is. There certainly is a word 'two,' and a word 'too,' and another 'to,' and they all three are pronounced alike—two, too, or to—which makes it correct to say: 'There are three twos, or three toos, or three tos in the English language.' But what's the use?"—Ex.

Method of Calculating Interest.

One of the shortest and simplest methods known for calculating interest is to multiply the principal by the number of days, and divide as follows:
For 4 per cent, divide by 90.
For 5 per cent, divide by 72.
For 6 per cent, divide by 60.
For 7 per cent, divide by 57.
For 8 per cent, divide by 45.
For instance, to find interest on $300.00 for 92 days at 8 per cent, multiply $300 by 92, divide by 45 and point off four decimal places. The result is $7.36.

For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Wm. D. Mitchell

An exchange tells this most amusing incident: A man who believes in the saying, "see a pin and pick it up, all the day you'll have good luck," saw a pin near the post office the other day. Bending down to get it, his hat tumbled down into the street, his eye glasses fell and broke on the pavement, his suspenders gave away behind, he bursted the button hole in the back of his shirt collar, and all but lost his false teeth. But he got the pin.

FARM FOR SALE.

Farm of 200 acres, more or less, lying on the waters of Lacy creek, known as the Cruey farm. All fenced and cross-fenced. Some good timber, and nearly all cleared land in grass. Large orchard; everlasting, fine water; 5-room dwelling house, halls and porches, also tenant house. For the next thirty days this farm will be offered at a bargain. Possession given January 1, 1910. For further particulars address ELLSWORTH LACY, R. R. No. 1, Rardin, Ill.

FARM FOR SALE.

Not being able to oversee the work on my farm on account of age and other disabilities I offer my farm of 125 acres, on Blackwater, one-half mile from Ezel, for sale. The farm consists of about 60 acres in grass, balance in cultivation and timber. Good 5-room dwelling with all necessary outbuildings, fine water, good orchard, etc. For terms and all other information call on or address, R. D. MOTLEY, Ezel, Ky.

A Rare Opportunity.

I offer for sale my residence, consisting of seven-room cottage, good lot and garden, and outbuildings. One of the most desirable locations in Hazel Green. Also my blacksmith and general repair shop, which is superior to anything of the kind in the country, being furnished with a complete outfit of tools and stock of materials and supplies; also equipped with power and machinery. Will sell all together or separately. For further particulars call on or address, JOHN H. ROSE, Hazel Green, Ky.

It's a good idea to let a girl have a party once in a while. She takes such an interest in getting the house cleaned up.

THE VERY BEST.

Have any of our readers seen a recent copy of the Cincinnati Weekly Enquirer? If not, it will pay to send for a copy, if for no other purpose than to note its present great worth as an educator in all things that tend to make life prosperous, and home, the happiest place on earth.

The editor by asking its readers to criticize and suggest improvements; and following advice thus obtained is enabled to produce a paper that exactly fits needs of a family and a material aid to father, mother and children in reaching that higher level in social life, where content and comfort reigns supreme.

Father obtains ample information that guides in the where, when and how to regulate and increase the income from his efforts. The mother in management of household affairs, practical economy, government of children, and other duties that makes her toil a labor of love. Children's minds and hearts are freed from thoughts of questionable amusements and frivolities of life, and encouraged to emulate all that is helpful in planning for a useful future in life.

The Grand Idea being that: "As are our Homes, so will be the Community, State and Nation."

A most desirable help, is a non-sectarian sermon each week, as preached by that Biblical Student Pastor Chas. T. Russell; a forcible reminder of the spiritual and temporal rewards gained by righteous living as preferable to a Godless life that brings nought but misery to the home.

Other departments and features are above the ordinary, the unanimous verdict of its readers being: "The cleanest and best family Weekly known to them."

Sample copies may be had by writing to the ENQUIRER COMPANY, Cincinnati, O.

DRINK WAINSCOTT'S ROX-A-KOLA

Mrs. J. Blaine Murphy and Miss Roxie Murphy were in town shopping Tuesday.

Dr. Taylor Center reports the birth of a baby girl to the wife of David Ross, of Grassy, last Monday.

Uncle Charley Cecil, whose case has been mentioned several times, is said to be on the mend, but very slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Quincy Jagers, of Illinois, are visiting Mrs. Jager's mother, Mrs. Jane Nickell, of near Daysboro.

Ominous Bill Brewer, a several time candidate for jailer of this county, has been confined to his bed for a week or so.

Salemen wanted to look after our interest in Wolfe and adjacent counties. Salary or commission. Address, The Victor Oil Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

Will Davis and wife, of Rardin, Ill., who have been visiting Ellis Johnson and other relatives, she being his sister, left for home Monday morning.

For Sale—Two of the Pieratt cottages for less than the lumber and lot can be bought. One acre in each lot; five rooms in each house. Apply at this office.

We received a long communication from Belknap, but not bearing the writer's name, we cannot publish it. Sign your name if you want your letters published.

W. G. Lockhart, dentist, is back in his office at Campton, and will remain there until November 15. If you are in need of dental work, you had better call and see him.

It is encouraging to find good roads conventions at this season of the year. It used to be that good roads were only discussed when the roads were almost impassable.

A delay in the shipment of the plates forces us to postpone the opening article of Dr. Cook's discovery of the North Pole. We hope, however, to give the first installment in our next issue.

The number of students at the academy is gradually increasing. The enrollment now is about 100 and when the country schools close the number who enroll will fill every department to overflowing.

Uncle Jim Little and Aunt Libby visited friends and relatives at Jackson last week. Among them his brother, Chas. Little, Mrs. Teeterman Bach and Mrs. Maud Cundiff. They say they had an enjoyable time.

The attention of the lady readers is called to the change of Mapel & Troy's advertisement in this issue. When in need of anything in the way of tailored suits or millinery goods this is the place to get it.

Malone Lykins, candidate for representative from this legislative district, passed through here Sunday evening en route to Campton to make glad the hearts of the voters whom he would meet on County court day.

Obituary of E. B. McClure.

MATTHEW LODGE, No. 357,
I. O. O. F.,
Grassy Creek, Ky., Oct. 1, '09.

In approaching such a task as ours in attempting to portray in words the sense of our grief in the loss of our chaplain, of one whose large heart and kindly manner had so bound him to us as a brother. The ordinary phrases sound cold and meaningless, while sentences couched in flowery terms seem affected and mock our grief.

Hence, we can only in the simplest words have his upright life, his noble heart, and his friendly smile a monument to his memory. While we remind the bereaved children that God's rainbow of promise spans the grave, and their father, our brother, robed in white garments, stands on the evergreen shore watching and waiting for us.

In compliance with our custom and evidence of our sorrow and esteem in which he was held, we will wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days, and cause these expressions to be recorded on a page set apart in our records, and to be printed in the Kentucky Odd Fellow and the HAZEL GREEN HERALD, and a copy furnished the family.

JOE C. STAMPER,
J. MONROE GEVEDON,
J. DUDLEY BARKER,
Committee.
J. DUDLEY BARKER, R. S.

Nearly Destitute.

Dr. J. Harlan Stamper, of this place, now living somewhere in Missouri, has a wife and three children in this town in really destitute circumstances. One of the trio being only about five weeks old. Mrs. Stamper is an elegant lady and without aid from her husband is in a precarious and peculiar position. While as proud as a peacock the fact remains that good christian ladies should see that she does not suffer for the necessities of life. THE HERALD would not for the world hurt her feelings or humiliate her in any way, but we think her false modesty in trying to pull through when she is neither physically or financially able to take care of herself should be corrected by her good friends. Our town is proverbial for the milk of human kindness and we shall rely upon the good ladies of our town to see that she nor her children suffer.

A Trip to Laurel.

The editor of this paper and his better seven-eighths took a buggy ride to Laurel Tuesday, and while the road is one an automobile would not be safe upon we conceived the idea that we could drive a gentle mare and have no trouble. Safely at the end of the route encouraged us that we could return and when only 300 yards on the way coming home we struck a bed of rock which broke the kingbolt. The blacksmith shop was a mile away and the blacksmith over 25 miles away. We borrowed two bolts, walked back a mile, but had Howard Miller, of Stillwater, as our guardian angel, and he provided to be a Good Samaritan. He worked like a Turk, saved us from staying in the woods all night and would not take a cent of compensation, and this, we think, proves him a Good Samaritan.

A Well Deserved Compliment.

The October number of the Southern School Journal prints an excellent portrait of Miss Nanette E. Fields, superintendent of Morgan county schools, and who recently resigned to accept a more lucrative position in the West Liberty Academy, and says further: "Miss Fields has been acknowledged as one of the best county superintendents in the state, and her resignation is causing universal regret. She has devoted much time to graduating pupils, increasing the teachers' library, raising the standard of teachers and intensifying the educational spirit generally. Her lofty ideals have been so strongly implanted in the educational work of Morgan county, that for years to come her influence will be felt."

Send in the news.

Dreamy Valley.

Sweet the rest in Dreamy Valley,
Golden lights and shadows play,
Where the sunbeams hold a rally
At the close of life's brief day;
Gently comes the green grass creeping
O'er the couch of deep dark brown,
While the silent ones are sleeping
Undisturbed by earthly sound.

Flowers in all their fragile beauty
Shed their fragrance on the air,
Tokens of true love or duty
Offered up with mourner's prayer.
Bitters tears may burn their eyelids,
Broken vows torment the brain,
Ceaseless care pursue the living,
But they still are free from pain.

Guarded by cold marble sentinels,
Stand the rows of young and old,
Whispering winds repeat the requiem,
Rustling leaves have softly told.
Sweet the rest of peaceful slumber,
Swiftly gained by high and low,
Countless lie the silent numbers,
When life's sun has ceased to glow.

—L. T.

Wouldn't Divide Time.

The editor of this paper was out of town Tuesday and until late Tuesday night. Hence he could not attend the political speaking. But friends of both parties, and apparently without prejudice tell "Our Man About Town," that Mr. Perry absolutely refused to divide time with Mr. Lykins, and it is said to have hurt Mr. Perry's cause. As he had bolted the nomination, it is probable that when the returns come in Mr. Perry, in horse parlance, will be put down "he also ran."

The Reason Why.

The following is a very truthful remark: "The man who grows up in his native town is regarded as a boy by his elders until he is well started down the declivity of life that ends in a hole. The stranger who comes into a place is more often pushed to the front than the young man who has grown up with the town. This is the reason why so many young men become dissatisfied with their home surroundings and long to cast their lot in other quarters."

Mapel & Troy have received their fall and winter stock of goods—millinery, dry goods, notions and other novelties. Opening dates October 8 and 9. At this opening will be seen fashion's latest creation in millinery—beautiful pattern hats, trimmings and shapes of various styles. Also a nice line of ladies' tailored suits, to which they invite your special attention. They have anything you want in the line of coats and skirts for ladies, misses and children, all selections made from the best houses who give their customers every advantage in styles and designs. Give them a call. Their line is complete. Do not forget opening dates, Friday and Saturday, October 8 and 9.

Kelly Kash and his very estimable wife were guests of Sam Kash and wife from Saturday until Wednesday. They left for Jackson that day and will be there for quite awhile. He is trying to win the race for Commonwealth's Attorney and with the help of a Democratic lady wife is going to cut down our old time Democratic majority. Democrats should be wide awake.

Jim Faulkner last week had a fox chase and ran two to the hole, and the next week caught two on the ground. Perry is an old fox hunter, and knows a good hound when he sees it, but when this election is over Bill Perry will say, "I used to be a good runner, but my dogs can now beat me."

J. D. Henry & Co., the live merchants of Grassy Creek, will sell a lot of young cattle, mules and horses in front of their store next Tuesday, October 12. If you want to buy some good stock don't fail to attend. For particulars see small bills printed at this office.

Miss Hines and Mrs. Carter wish through the columns of THE HERALD to invite every woman in our town to be present at a special meeting of the C. W. B. M., to be held from 3 to 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, October 11th, in the parlors of Sarah K. Yancey home.

Money would be more enjoyable if it took people as long to spend it as it does to earn it.

KENTUCKY KERNELS

Carefully Collated and Concisely Chronicled.

Coon hunting promises to become a most popular sport in Central Kentucky this season. Society folks are planning coon parties.

After only a short illness Miss Mattie Goldsby, of Bath county, died from blood poisoning caused from picking a pimple on her chin with a brass pin.

Joe Graddy, a prominent Woodford county farmer, came near losing his hand the other day, a corn crusher cutting a gash that required thirty stitches to close.

The first house in Louisville was built by James Patton in October, 1778. Louisville now covers nearly 15,000 acres, and has grown to a population of about 300,000.

Ernest Hays, charged with killing James Lane, his brother-in-law, in Madison county, last June, was arrested in Jackson county last week and is now in Richmond jail.

It is said that the increase of "moonshine" stills in the mountains of southeastern Kentucky is nearly 200 per cent since state wide prohibition went into effect in Tennessee.

William T. Armstrong, 88 years old, of Ballard county, predicted that he would die four years after his wife's death. Almost to the very hour he expired at the designated time.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Layman, an aged couple living in the eastern part of Jefferson county, were brutally assaulted in their home by three masked robbers, who were later captured.

John Moore, a Bagdad negro, imagined that his soul had left him and taken up its abode in the hind legs of a mule running at large. Being too wild he was taken to Shelbyville jail where a jury visited him and he was sent to the asylum.

Prohibitionists and anti-saloon people of Winchester filed a petition for local option in that city, and the saloon element came forward with a larger one for local option in the county. It is thought the election will come off early in December, though the date has not yet been set.

W. F. Mason, of Louisville, rushed into the street and grabbing a live trolley wire, which had fallen from its fastenings, threw it to one side to save the lives of passers-by. He was severely burned about the hands, but is not seriously injured. He was thrown about forty feet by the shock.

The Utopian literary society of Kingswood college, in Clark county, recently debated the question, "Resolved, that Dr. Cook deserves more credit than Peary in discovering the North pole," and this great question was settled in the affirmative, according to the Kingswood correspondent of the Winchester Democrat.

The federal grand jury in session at Frankfort last week returned a large batch of indictments against Breathitt county people for using the mails to defraud. They had been ordering goods from wholesale dealers by mail and when time came for settlement neither goods nor money could be found.

Bessie Blevins, the 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Blevins, of Stepstone, Bath county, died following an operation for cancer. A 20-pound tumor was removed from the stomach, and another cancer was on her liver, but the physician saw it was useless to remove it. She lived only a few minutes after the operation.

All over Hardin county there is a banner apple crop, but far so as we know the blue ribbon should go to Charley Corbett, of Stithon, for raising the biggest crop. Off his farm alone he shipped 1,200 barrels of this luscious fruit. This is enough to give every man, woman and child in the county an apple and then have plenty to spare.—Elizabethtown News.

Morris Wilcoxon shot and killed John W. Montgomery in Barren county, but no motive is known. Montgomery induced Wilcoxon to pool his tobacco, and after the papers were signed, Montgomery, Wilcoxon and another neighbor were sitting in a room talking, when Wilcoxon arose and went up stairs. He returned with a shotgun and without a word of warning killed his man.

Rheumatic Pains

"My mother is a great sufferer from rheumatism, and Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills is the only remedy that relieves her."

MRS. G. DAVENPORT,
Roycefield, N. J.

The pains of rheumatism are almost invariably relieved with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They also overcome that nervous irritation which prevents sleep because they soothe the nerves. To chronic sufferers they are invaluable. When taken as directed, they relieve the distress and save the weakening influence of pain, which so frequently prostrates. Many sufferers use them whenever occasion requires with the greatest satisfaction, why not you? They do not derange the stomach nor create a habit. Why not try them? Get a package from your druggist. Take it according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

THE
TOLEDO BLADE,
TOLEDO, OHIO.

The Best Known Newspaper
in the United States.

CIRCULATION, - - - 200,000

Popular in Every State.

The seventy-fourth year of its existence finds the Toledo Blade more popular than at any period of its remarkable career. It is now read each week by more than a million people. Its field is not circumscribed by State boundaries, but involves the length and breadth of the United States, giving it an unquestionable right of claiming to be the greatest national weekly newspaper in the country.

The Weekly Blade is distinctly a family newspaper. The one object of its publishers has always been to make it fit for the American home, for the fireside, and of interest to every member of the family. To fulfill this purpose it is kept clean and wholesome. The news of the world is handled in a comprehensive manner, and the various departments of The Blade are edited with painstaking care. The Household page is a delight to the women and children; current affairs are treated editorially without prejudice; the serial stories are selected with the idea of pleasing the greatest number of fiction lovers; the Question Bureau is a scrapbook of information; the Farmstead columns are conducted with the purpose of giving the patrons a medium for the exchange of ideas and information on farm topics. No department is neglected, but every feature is taken care of with the idea of making The Blade worth many times the price of subscription—one dollar a year. Sample copies mailed free. Address,

THE GUILTY PARTY

By O. HENRY.

(Copyright, 1906, by S. S. McClure Co.)

A RED haired, unshaven, untidy man sat in a rocking chair by a window. He had just lighted a pipe and was puffing blue clouds with great satisfaction. He had removed his shoes and donned a pair of blue, faded carpet slippers. With the morbid thirst of the confirmed daily news drinker, he awkwardly folded back the pages of an evening paper, eagerly gulping down the strong, black headlines, to be followed as a chaser by the milder details of the smaller type.

In an adjoining room a woman was cooking supper. Odors from strong bacon and boiling coffee contended against the put plug fumes from the vespertine pipe.

Outside was one of those crowded streets of the east side in which as twilight falls Satan sets up his recruiting office. A mighty host of children danced and ran and played in the street. Above the playground forever hovered a great bird. The bird was known to humorists as the stork. But the people of Chrystie street were better ornithologists. They called it a vulture.

A little girl of twelve came up timidly to the man reading and resting by the window and said:

"Papa, won't you play a game of checkers with me if you aren't too tired?"

The red haired, unshaven, untidy man sitting shoeless by the window answered, with a frown:

"Checkers? No; I won't. Can't a man who works hard all day have a little rest when he comes home? Why don't you go out and play with the other kids on the sidewalk?"

The woman who was cooking came to the door.

"John," she said, "I don't like for Lizzie to play in the street. They learn too much there that ain't good for 'em. She's been in the house all day long. It seems that you might give up a little of your time to amuse her when you come home."

"Let her go out and play like the rest of 'em if she wants to be amused," said the red haired, unshaven, untidy man, "and don't bother me."

"You're on," said Kid Mullaly. "Fifty dollars to $25 I take Annie to the dance. Put up."

The Kid's black eyes were snapping with the fire of the baited and challenged. He drew out his "roll" and slapped five tens upon the bar. The three or four young fellows who were thus "taken" more slowly produced their stake.

"And, oh, what'll be done to you'll be a plenty," said a better, with anticipatory glee.

"That's my lookout," said the Kid sternly. "Bill 'em up all around, Mike."

After the round Burke, the Kid's sponge, sponge holder, pal, mentor and grand vizier, drew him out to the boot-black stand at the saloon corner, where all the official and important matters of the Small Hours Social club were settled.

"Cut that blond out, Kid," was his advice, "or there'll be trouble. What do you want to throw down that girl of yours for? You'll never find one that'll freeze to you like Liz has. She's worth a hail full of Annes."

"I'm no Annie admirer!" said the Kid, dropping a cigarette ash on his polished toe and wiping it off on Tony's shoulder. "But I want to teach Liz a lesson. She thinks I belong to her. She's been bragging that I daren't speak to another girl. Liz is all right in some ways. She's drinking a little too much lately. And she uses language that a lady oughtn't."

"You're engaged, ain't you?" asked Burke.

"Sure. We'll get married next year, maybe."

"I saw you make her drink her first glass of beer," said Burke. "That was two years ago, when she used to come down to the corner of Chrystie bare-headed to meet you after supper. She was a quiet sort of a kid then and couldn't speak without blushing."

"She's a little spitfire sometimes now," said the Kid. "I hate jealousy. That's why, I'm going to the dance with Annie. I'll teach her some sense." "Well, you better look a little out," were Burke's last words. "If Liz was my girl and I was to sneak out to a dance coupled up with an Annie I'd want a suit of chain armor on under my gladsome rags, all right."

Through the land of the stork-vulture wandered Liz. Her black eyes searched the passing crowds ferily, but vaguely. Now and then she hummed bars of foolish little songs.

Liz's skirt was green silk. Her waist was a large brown and pink plaid, well fitting and not without style. She wore a cluster of rings of huge imitation rubies and a locket that banged her knees at the bottom of a silver chain. Her shoes were run down over twisted high heels and were strangers to polish. Her hat would scarcely have passed into a flour barrel.

The "family entrance" of the Blue Jay cafe received her.

"Whisky, Tommy," she said as her sisters farther uptown murmur, "Champagne, James."

"Sure, Miss Lizzie! What'll the chaser be?"

"Seltzer. And, say, Tommy, has the Kid been around today?"

"Why, no, Miss Lizzie, I haven't seen him today."

"I'm lookin' for 'm," said Liz after the chaser had spurred under her nose. "It's got to me that he says he'll take Annie Karlson to the dance. Let him. The pink eyed white rat! I'm lookin' for 'm. You know me, Tommy. Two years me and the Kid've been engaged. Look at that ring. Five hundred he said it cost. Let him take her to the dance. What'll I do? I'll cut his heart out. Another whisky, Tommy."

"I wouldn't listen to no such reports, Miss Lizzie," said the waiter smoothly from the narrow opening above his chin. "Kid Mullaly's not the guy to throw a lady like you down. Seltzer on the side?"

"Two years," repeated Liz, softening a little to sentiment under the magic of the distiller's art. "I always used to play out on the street of evenin's 'cause there was nothin' doin' for me at home. For a long time I just sat on doorsteps and looked at the lights and the people goin' by. And then the Kid came along one evenin' and sized me up, and I was mashed on the spot for fair. The first drink he made me take I cried all night at home and got a lekkin' for makin' a noise. And now—say, Tommy, you ever see this Annie Karlson? If it wasn't for peroxide the chloroform limit would have put her out long ago. Oh, I'm lookin' for 'm. You tell the Kid if he comes in. Me? I'll cut his heart out. Another whisky, Tommy."

A little unsteadily, but with watchful and brilliant eyes, Liz walked up the avenue toward the Small Hours Social club.

At 9 o'clock the president, Kid Mullaly, paced upon the floor with a lady on his arm. As the Lorelei's was her hair golden. Her "yes" was softened to a "yah," but its quality of assent was patent to the most Milesian ears. She stepped upon her own train and blushed, and—she smiled into the eyes of Kid Mullaly.

And then as the two stood in the middle of the waxed floor the thing happened to prevent which many lamps are burning nightly in many studies and libraries.

Out from the circle of spectators in the hall leaped Fate in a green silk skirt under the non de guerre of Liz. Her eyes were hard and blacker than jet. She did not scream or waver. Most unwomanly she cried out one oath, the Kid's own favorite oath and in his own deep voice, and then while the Small Hours Social club went frantically to pieces she made good her boast to Tommy, the waiter—made good as far as the length of her knife blade and the strength of her arm permitted.

Liz ran out and down the street swift and true as a woodcock flying through a grove of saplings at dusk.

And then followed the big city's biggest shame, handed down from a long ago century of the basest barbarity—the hue and cry. Nowhere but in the big cities does it survive, and here most of all, where the ultimate perfection of culture, citizenship and alleged superiority joins bawling in the chase.

They pursued, a shrieking mob of fathers, mothers, lovers and maidens, howling, yelling, calling, whistling, crying for blood.

Knowing her way and hungry for her surcease, she darted down the familiar ways until at last her feet struck the dull solidity of the rotting pier. And then it was but a few more panting steps, and good mother East river took Liz to her bosom, soothed her muddily, but quickly, and settled in five minutes the problem that keeps lights burning o' nights in thousand of pastorates and colleges.

It's mighty funny what kind of dreams one has sometimes. Poets call them visions, but a vision is only a dream in blank verse. I dreamed the rest of this story.

I thought I was in the next world and there was a great crowd of us outside the courtroom where the judgments were going on. And every now and then a very beautiful and imposing court officer angel would come outside the door and call another case in a loud voice.

While I was considering my own worldly sins and wondering whether there would be any use of my trying to prove an alibi by claiming that I lived in New Jersey the bailiff angel came to the door and sang out, "Case No. 99,552,743!"

Up stepped a plain clothes man—there were lots of 'em there, dressed exactly like preachers and hustling us spirits around just as cops do on earth—and by the arm he dragged—whom, do you think? Why, Liz!

The court officer took her inside and closed the door. I went up to Mr. Fly Cop and inquired about the case.

"A very sad one," says he, laying the points of his manicured fingers together—"an utterly incorrigible girl. I am special terrestrial officer, the Rev. Jones. The case was assigned to me. The girl murdered her fiancé and committed suicide. She had no defense. My report to the court relates the facts in detail, all of which are substantiated by reliable witnesses. The wages of sin is death. Praise the Lord!"

The court officer opened the door and stepped out.

"Poor girl!" said Special Terrestrial Officer the Rev. Jones, with a tear in his eye. "It was one of the saddest cases that I ever met with. Of course she was—"

"Discharged," said the court officer. "Come here, Jonesy. First thing you know you'll be switched to the poitpe squad. How would you like to be on the missionary force in the south sea islands—hey? Now, you quit making these false arrests or you'll be transferred—see! The guilty party you've got to look for in this case is a red haired, unshaven, untidy man, sitting by the window reading in his stocking feet while his children play in the streets. Get a move on you!"

Now, wasn't that a silly dream?

FIGHTING FEVERS.

Why Vigorous Measures Are Necessary in Cases of Sunstroke.

A clinical thermometer is probably as common in most families as is a stepladder or a broom, and it is well that its use and the general significance of its disclosures should be understood by those in authority, but fussiness and constant resort to it and continual discussion of temperatures are to be deplored.

The old fashioned way of placing the hand upon the child's body and announcing that it felt feverish or had a fever without any regard to mathematical accuracy as to degrees and fractions worked just as well as, perhaps better than, the new fashioned way carried to a nervous extreme. At the same time a rise of temperature always means something, and it most decidedly means the calling in of a physician if it does not go down of itself or yield to simple remedies.

When the temperature is taken by the mouth the thermometer should register about 98.7 degrees, although this may vary at different times during the day in perfectly well people. When it registers 99 degrees or 99.5 degrees the person is said to be feverish. Anything below 98 degrees is subnormal, and anything over 105 degrees is called hyperpyrexia, or high fever.

In many cases fevers are a sort of blessing in disguise. These are the fevers caused by the toxins of bacteria, of which typhoid is a type. The whole system is then engaged in a fight against the germs, and the battle is waged to more advantage apparently when "the blood is fighting hot." This is why, although the fever can be beaten down by the application of cold and the administration of drugs, it is often poor practice to suppress it in this way. Getting the fever down may be a momentary satisfaction, but it does nothing to help cure the underlying cause. It is as if a general should insist upon silencing his own guns.

At the same time the fever must be watched and kept in check, because this sort of fight is calling for an immense outlay from the system, and a raging fever not only burns up bacteria, but it feeds upon tissue and blood and all it can find, as any one can testify who has watched or lived through a convalescence from one.

What is true of the fever of a germ disease is false altogether in the fever of sunstroke. In this case the fever is the disease. It is not a regiment of infantry, but a conflagration, and it must be put out as quickly as possible and by all the means at one's disposal—cold baths, ice packs, ice water, anything that will beat it down.

The character of a fever is a great assistance to diagnosis in many cases, and this is why a physician should always be asked to sit in judgment on it.—Youth's Companion.

His Depressor.

He was handsome, young, talented. He had apparently everything one could wish for as a start in life, but every time he came into a room where there were mirrors he absorbed himself in contemplation of the back of his head.

"That spot is getting thinner and thinner," he complained when he called on the woman and sat down after looking at it in all the mirrors in her flat. "Don't make any difference what I do with it, it keeps on getting larger. I've tried everything, rubbing it with kerosene, with hair tonics; can't do a thing with it."

"It's just as well," she consoled him. "If you didn't have that little bald spot to keep you humiliated there'd be no associating with you."—New York Press.

A Case For Sympathy.

Two matrons of a certain western city, whose respective matrimonial ventures did not in the first instance prove altogether satisfactory, met at a woman's club one day, when the first matron remarked:

"Hattie, I met your 'ex,' dear old Tom, the day before yesterday. We talked much of you."

"Is that so?" asked the other matron. "Did he seem sorry when you told him of my second marriage?"

"Indeed he did and said so most frankly."

"Honest?"

"Honest! He said he was extremely sorry, though, he added, he didn't know the man personally."—Lippincott's.

Pat's Appreciation.

An artist had finished a landscape. On looking up he beheld an Irish navy gazing at his canvas. "Well," said the artist familiarly, "do you suppose you could make a picture like that?" The Irishman mopped his forehead a moment. "Sure, a man c'n do anything if he's druv to it!" he replied.—London Telegraph.
